

Aldo Leopold Charter School fall YCC crews get back in the swing of things

The fall Youth Conservation Crew, offered by Aldo Leopold Charter School, provides paid internship positions for 33 students for the fall semester, using COVID-19-safe practices as established by the state YCC Commission and strengthened by the ALCS Risk Management Team, according to a news release.

The crews include garden, trails, eco-monitoring, and mural design and installation.

The garden crew, under the guidance of Lone Mountain Natives Nursery co-owner Tricia Hurley, created a traditional native herb garden with Naava Koenigsberg's supervision, the release stated. Koenigsberg received a grant from the New Mexico Tourism Department under the New Mexico True program that is administered by the town of Silver City for the plants, soil and mulch.

The crew is also working at the historic Waterworks site planting numerous natives for Bridgette Johns, who is working to transform the site into a Continental Divide Trail visitors center.

In addition to these projects, the crew continues to maintain the 10th Street median pollinator garden and the Gough Park Orchard, according to the news release. Members are looking forward to establishing a new greenhouse on the ALCS campus, located at Western New Mexico University's Ritch Hall. The greenhouse was designed by ALCS alumnus Stephen Lindsey at Future Forge. Adobe Techniques owner Rohan Stites provided the equipment needed to level the site.

Under the direction of Jon Bjornstad, Asher Gelbart and Toxtli Sanchez, the trail crew has focused on enhancing the quality of life for ALCS students and campus visitors by designing and installing a walking path and series of dry-stacked stone terraces along the steep slope between Ritch Hall (the new ALCS facility) and the student drop-off area below, the release stated.

The ambitious project features outdoor classroom spaces, stone amphitheater-style seating and play areas, passive and active rainwater harvesting, and erosion control measures, according to the release.

Crew member Colin Casler is ecstatic about his teacher and the new skills he is learning: "... breaking rocks with a chisel and hammer is a fully artistic and creative experience. You

PAID IN FULL

After reviewing the records on file in the Catron County Clerk's Office, James Williams and Ag Country Propane, Inc. located in Quemado, New Mexico, are currently clear of any and all liens against him as an individual and his company as a whole.

As a County Clerk, I cannot certify this, but a review of the documents shows all liens on record have been released. A Title Company can do a complete search and verification, but I am confident in my findings.

JAMES "JIMBO" WILLIAMS
for
STATE SENATE

Dear Voter,

We need honest leaders in Sante Fe now more than ever. I'm not running to join the crowd, I'm running to be your voice and fight FOR YOUR priorities. As your State Senator, you can count on me that I will never cave to the political elites and outside special interest groups. I want to be your voice representing you and your families in our district and protect Rural New Mexico. We need to get off the bottom of the good list and get off the top of the bad list. I will focus on education, healthcare for ALL, internet broadband, diversifying our economy to create more jobs. I will fight to protect the jobs and industries we do have. I want to help small businesses thrive, protect the unborn by ending elective late - term abortion. I will support law enforcement and all first responders to make sure they have the resources they need to help our communities. I want to remove taxes from Social Security to help our retired community and our Veterans. I will fight for Our Constitutional Rights. We need to bring common sense to Santa Fe. I'm asking for your vote and I would be honored to be your State Senator.

Sincerely,
James S. Williams
